

Neighborhood Traffic Safety Alliance

What is the Neighborhood Traffic Safety Alliance?

The Neighborhood Traffic Safety Alliance (NTSA) is a group of community volunteers from Vancouver neighborhoods who advocate for neighborhood traffic safety and offer input to Vancouver's Public Works Department, Community Development Department and other regional transportation-related agencies.

The NTSA acts as an independent organization that conducts its own meetings, which may be attended by city staff as needed, whose voting membership is from any recognized neighborhood association within the City of Vancouver. Community members who reside outside of recognized neighborhood associations can participate in the NTSA as well.

The group typically meets the third Tuesday of each month. Meetings are conducted either virtually or in-person, with prior notification provided. Meetings are typically held at 6:30 p.m., and last about 60 to 90 minutes. The NTSA does not usually meet during the summer months or in December.

How can the NTSA help with Traffic Safety Concerns?

The primary goal of the NTSA is to assist with the identification of needs and potential mitigation for traffic issues affecting neighborhoods within the City of Vancouver. Since 2001, the NTSA has played a significant role in helping community members find solutions to traffic safety concerns through the implementation of over 90 different projects throughout Vancouver.

The NTSA provides a public forum for neighbors to bring traffic safety concerns to and receive guidance on how they may be able to successfully find a solution to the issue.
